

Statistics for the SDGs - indicators for national priorities

including auxiliary spaces, built or remodeled for residential purposes; structurally separated (by permanent walls) within a building, into which a separate access leads from a staircase, a passageway, acommon hall or directly from the street, a courtyard a garden.  The indicator shows dwelling stocks of a selected territorial unit. Low indicator values indicate a shortage of dwellings, which could result in social problems, such as proble with the emancipation of young people. High indicator values indicate an oversupply of dwellings, the result of which maybe economic difficulties, such as the difficulty of maintaining unused resources. The value of the indicator is also affected by cultural a demographic factors, such as the average number of children per family, the average age and cultural habits of the extended families living together.  The data concerning the number of dwellings are derived from censuses and reports of dwelling stocks, on the costs and revenues of maintaining dwelling stocks, on rates of	Name of the indicator	1.3.a Number of dwellings per 1 thous. population
Definition    Number of dwellings per 1,000 population.'	•	Goal 1. No poverty
Unit  [-]  Available dimentions  According to the definition, a dwelling is a premises comprising one or several rooms including auxiliary spaces, built or remodeled for residential purposes; structurally separated (by permanent walls) within a building, into which a separate access leads from a staircase, a passageway, acommon hall or directly from the street, a courtyard a garden.  The indicator shows dwelling stocks of a selected territorial unit. Low indicator values indicate a shortage of dwellings, which could result in social problems, such as proble with the emancipation of young people. High indicator values indicate an oversupply of dwellings, the result of which maybe economic difficulties, such as the difficulty of maintaining unused resources. The value of the indicator is also affected by cultural a demographic factors, such as the average number of children per family, the average age and cultural habits of the extended families living together.  The data concerning the number of dwellings are derived from censuses and reports dwelling stocks, on the costs and revenues of maintaining dwelling stocks, on rates of charges in buildings with dwellings, as well as from reports on housing and communa economy of the community.  Data source  Statistics Poland	Priority	Improvement of housing situation
Available dimentions  According to the definition, a dwelling is a premises comprising one or several rooms including auxiliary spaces, built or remodeled for residential purposes; structurally separated (by permanent walls) within a building, into which a separate access leads from a staircase, a passageway, acommon hall or directly from the street, a courtyard a garden.  The indicator shows dwelling stocks of a selected territorial unit. Low indicator values indicate a shortage of dwellings, which could result in social problems, such as proble with the emancipation of young people. High indicator values indicate an oversupply of dwellings, the result of which maybe economic difficulties, such as the difficulty of maintaining unused resources. The value of the indicator is also affected by cultural a demographic factors, such as the average number of children per family, the average age and cultural habits of the extended families living together.  The data concerning the number of dwellings are derived from censuses and reports of dwelling stocks, on the costs and revenues of maintaining dwelling stocks, on rates of charges in buildings with dwellings, as well as from reports on housing and communate economy of the community.  Data source  Statistics Poland	Definition	'Number of dwellings per 1,000 population.'
According to the definition, a dwelling is a premises comprising one or several rooms including auxiliary spaces, built or remodeled for residential purposes; structurally separated (by permanent walls) within a building, into which a separate access leads from a staircase, a passageway, acommon hall or directly from the street, a courtyard a garden.  The indicator shows dwelling stocks of a selected territorial unit. Low indicator values indicate a shortage of dwellings, which could result in social problems, such as proble with the emancipation of young people. High indicator values indicate an oversupply of dwellings, the result of which maybe economic difficulties, such as the difficulty of maintaining unused resources. The value of the indicator is also affected by cultural a demographic factors, such as the average number of children per family, the average age and cultural habits of the extended families living together.  The data concerning the number of dwellings are derived from censuses and reports of dwelling stocks, on the costs and revenues of maintaining dwelling stocks, on rates of charges in buildings with dwellings, as well as from reports on housing and communal economy of the community.  Data source  Statistics Poland	Unit	[-] including auxiliary spaces, built or remodeled for residential purposes; structurally separated (by permanent walls) within a building, into which a separate access leads from a staircase, a passageway, acommon hall or directly from the street, a courtyard a garden.  The indicator shows dwelling stocks of a selected territorial unit. Low indicator values indicate a shortage of dwellings, which could result in social problems, such as proble with the emancipation of young people. High indicator values indicate an oversupply of dwellings, the result of which maybe economic difficulties, such as the difficulty of maintaining unused resources. The value of the indicator is also affected by cultural a demographic factors, such as the average number of children per family, the average age and cultural habits of the extended families living together.  The data concerning the number of dwellings are derived from censuses and reports of dwelling stocks, on the costs and revenues of maintaining dwelling stocks, on rates of charges in buildings with dwellings, as well as from reports on housing and communa economy of the community.  Data source  Statistics Poland	Available dimentions	total separated (by permanent walls) within a building, into which a separate access leads from a staircase, a passageway, acommon hall or directly from the street, a courtyard or a garden.  The indicator shows dwelling stocks of a selected territorial unit. Low indicator values indicate a shortage of dwellings, which could result in social problems, such as problems with the emancipation of young people. High indicator values indicate an oversupply of dwellings, the result of which maybe economic difficulties, such as the difficulty of maintaining unused resources. The value of the indicator is also affected by cultural and demographic factors, such as the average number of children per family, the average age and cultural habits of the extended families living together.  The data concerning the number of dwellings are derived from censuses and reports on dwelling stocks, on the costs and revenues of maintaining dwelling stocks, on rates of charges in buildings with dwellings, as well as from reports on housing and communal
Data availability Annual data; since 2010	Data source	Statistics Poland
	Data availability	Annual data; since 2010
Notes  Indicators related to population (sex, age) since 2010 until 2019 incl., have been converted according to the balance sheet prepared on the basis of NSP 2011 results. Indicators related to population (sex, age groups) since 2020 have been converted according to the balance sheet prepared on the basis of NSP 2021 results.	Notes	converted according to the balance sheet prepared on the basis of NSP 2011 results. Indicators related to population (sex, age groups) since 2020 have been converted
Data updated on 30-07-2024	Data updated on	30-07-2024
Metadata updated on 30-07-2024	Metadata updated on	30-07-2024