

Statistics for the SDGs - indicators for regional priorities

Name of the indicator	9.A.9 Internal R&D personnel per 1000 economically active persons
Sustainable Development Goal	Goal 9. Industry, innovation and infrastructure
Priority	Increased competitiveness of the region by increasing the research and innovation potential (Development of institutional potential for research and development, supporting cooperation between the research sector and the economy)
Definition	Share of internal R&D personnel per 1,000 economically active persons (economically active according to BAEL, aged 15-89)
Unit	FTE
Available dimensions	total
Methodological explanations	Internal R&D personnel, Working in R&D English name: Internal R&D personnel Definition: Persons working (employees, working owners and unpaid helping family members) in a statistical unit who contribute to the internal research and development activities of that unit. FTE - full-time equivalents - conversion units used to determine the actual involvement in research and development activities; one full-time equivalent (FTE) means one person-year devoted exclusively to R&D activities. Research and experimental development (R&D) - creative work undertaken in a methodical manner in order to increase the resources of knowledge - including knowledge about mankind, culture and society - and to create new applications for existing knowledge.
Data source	Statistics Poland
Data availability	Annual data, since 2016
Notes
Data updated on
Metadata updated on	